Indeed, a majority would prefer to kill it by antagmining it with other measures and it seems onizing it with other measures and it seems probable that this will be the successful plan, though should the bill reach a direct vote it would pass.

Fast Mails This Way.

The postoffice appropriation bill passed the house today. It carried an appropriation of $196,000 for special fast mall facilities between Springfield, Mass, Boston, New York, Washington, Atlanta and New Orleans. Under this Atlanta, all Georgia and, indeed, the entire south and southwest will have reall facilities. will have mail facilities equally as fast as the north and west. Though a vigorous fight was made on this clause of the bill by Mr. Blount and Mr. Kyle, of Mississippi, it passed by a large majority. The senate will undoubtedly pass it.

Washington, February 22.—Not more than two dozen members were in attendance when the house met this morning.

After the disposal of some routine business Mr. Henderson was recognized to move that the house go into committee of the whole for the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill.

Instantly Mr. Hatch was on his feet antagonizing Mr. Henderson's motion with the anti-option bill. Mr. Hatch raised the question of consideration against the appropriation bill, desiring that the anti-option bill be taken up.

But Mr. Henderson's motion was successful—weas 141, nays 64—and the house in committee of the whole resumed consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill. The pending motion was that made by Mr. Kyle, of Mississippi, striking out the clause making the appropriation for special mail facilities.

Its passage was the signal for another parliamentary struggle for the floor, Mr. Peel, of Arkansas, claiming the recognition of the house in behalf of the Indian appropriation bill and Mr. Hatch desiring to move to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of taking up the anti-option bill.

Mr. Hatch demanded the yeas and nays, which were ordered, after Mr. Hatch, by parlamentary inquiry, had elicited the ininformation that if Mr. Peel's motion was voted down he would be recognized to move to take up the anti-option bill. The result was yeas 125, nays 75; so the house went into committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation bill.

The house broke into a roar of laughter and "Deacon" White, formerly a member of congress, who had come from New York to watch the fight over the anti-option bill and was on the floor, shook with glee when the speaker called Mr. Hatch to the chair as presiding officer. Mr. Hatch was reluctant to take the gavel, but yielded after a fw words of private explanation from

Many of them left the building after the general debate began and those who remained, with few exceptions, took only a languid nterest in the proceedings.

Finally the general debate was closed and Mr. Outhwaite submitted the conference report on the army appropriation bill in order that it might be printed.

The house, at 5:15 o'clock, adjourned.

How the Senators Commemorated Washing ton's Birthday.

Washington, February 22.—Five years ago the birthday of Washington was commemorated in the senate by the reading of his farewell address. This was done at the instance of senator Hoar. Mr. Ingalls, then president of the senate pro tem., was the reader. Today that precedent was repeated on motion of Mr. Hoar, Mr. Manderson, the president of the senate pro tem., being the reader.

The vice president being absent, the chair was taken by Mr. Manderson and as soon as the journal of yesterday was read Mr. Manderson rose and said that, in obedience to the order of the senate, he would read the farewell address of George Washington. And he proceeded to do so with most of the senators in their seats and with a fairly large audience in the galleries, all giving close and respectful attention.

The reading concluded at 1 o'clock and then on motion of Mr. Sherman the senate proceeded to executive business.

The doors were reopened after about five minutes and routine morning business was proceeded with.

The sundry civil appropriation bill was taken up and all amendments made in committee of the whole, some of which had been reserved last night, were agreed to. Two or three new ones were added and the bill passed.

The conference report on the army appropriation bill, which had been presented last week, was called up and agreed to after discussion as to the rank which the next chief of the signal service is to hold. The conference committee had struck out the senate amendment fixing the rank at that of lieutenant colonel instead of brigadier general.

Mr. Bate moved to recommit the bill to dier general.

Mr. Bate moved to recommit the bill to the conference committee, but that motion was defeated. So the law on that point remains unchanged.

The consular and diplomatic appropriation bill was then taken up, but without any action upon it.

The senate at 2:40 o'clock again proceeded to the consideration of executive business. The doors remained closed until 5:45 o'clock, when the senate adjourned.

Ex-Secretary Whitney Will Sail in Southern Seas.

New York, February 22.—William O. Whitney, ex-secretary of the navy, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Panline Whitney, his two sons, Payne and Harry Whitney, and his brother-in-law. Colonel Oliver H. Payne, of Cleveland, Ohio, left in a special car on the 0:30 o'clock train from Jersey City this morning for Jacksonville. Fla., for a cruise with H. M. Hanna, the Cleveland iron master, on his steam yacht Comanche.

Since the death of his wife, Mr. Whitney has been much prostrated and the trip is taken at the solicitation of Mr. Hanna and Colonel Payne, in the hope that a change of seems and rest will prove beneficial to his health. The party will be gone six weeks and will visit Nassau, the West Indies, the Bahamas and Antigue, Martinique, Harbadoes, Trinidad and Grenads, of the Windward islands.

Mr. Cleveland Announces That His Cabinet Is All Right.

HILARY HERBERT GETS THE NAVY. And Richard Olney, of Massachusetts Is Attorney General.

THE LAST APPOINTMENT A SURPRISE.

Especially Among the Friends of Mr. Jenks, of Pennsylvania, Who It Was Stated Had Been Appointed.

Lakewood, N. J., February 22,-Mr. Cleve land announced this evening that he had completed his cabinet by the selection of Richard Olney, of Boston, for attorney general and Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama, for secretary of the navy. The complete cabinet is as follows:

Walter Q. Gresham, of Illinois, secretary of the treasury. Daniel S. Lamont, of New York, secretary Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama, secret ry of the navy. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, secretary of the interior.

J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, secre tary of agriculture. Wilson S. Bissel, of New York, postmas Richard W. Olney, of Massachusetts, attorney general.

The election of Hilary A. Herbert for the navy has been expected for several days, but Mr. Olney's name had not been mentioned in connection with the cabinet and his selection is a surprise to everybody, particularly to the friends of George A.

particularly to the friends of George A. Jenks.

Hilary A. Herbert has been in congress for many years and has acted as chairman of the naval committee of the house. He is thoroughly familliar with the work that has been done toward placing the United States navy on a proper footing and his knowledge of the present condition of vessels under construction and which have been planned makes him a most desirable man for the head of the department. His selection is practically a promotion.

Richard Oiney is one of the leading practitioners of the Massachusetts bar. He has not held any political position or been prominent in political matters, but is known as one of the leading lawyers and substantial citizens of Boston. His selection gives New England a representative in the cabinet and that of Mr. Herbert gives the south three positions.

Everybody Likes It in Washington.

Everybody Likes It in Washington Washington, February 22.—(Special.) The announcement from Lakewood touight that Colonel Hilary A. The appointment was discussed about the hotels late tonight and all the southern members express themselves as very much pleased. tonight and all the southern members express themselves as very much pleased. Colonel Herbert has been a member of the house for sixteen years. He has made much reputation as chairman of the house naval committee by his chriest work towards building up a great American navy. Colonel Herbert is popular with the members of the house and his appointment will have a decided tendency towards neutralizing the sting the appointment of Judge Gresham inflicted upon the members of the house. It is believed that he will be a strong factor in bringing, Mr. Cleveland and the house into closer relations than reand the house into closer relations than reent events would indicate they will occupy. Mr. Herbert Interviewed.

Mr. Herbert Interviewed.

Representative Hilary A. Herbert had just returned with his daughter from a reception when the official announcement of his selection by President-elect Cleveland as secretary of the navy was communicated to him by telephone by a United Press reporter. Subsequently when the reporter called at the Richmond, where Mr. Herbert is stopping, the latter said he had received notice of his appointment in a telegram from Mr. Cleveland early in the evening, and that he had sent a reply accepting the homor conferred upon him. Mr. Herbert, in the course of a minute's conversation, said that in the administration of the office about to be entrusted to him, he expected to carry out the liberal ideas for building up and prometing the lavy, which were begun by Secretary Whitney and continued by his successor.

PAUL NEUMANN'S STATEMENT.

Against the Provisional Government.

Washington, February 22.—Secretary of State Foster sent today to the chalpman of the committee on foreign relations for the information of the senate the statement which Paul Keumann left at the department yesterday, and accompanied it with a report of the interview held with the secretary, From the latter it appears that the object of Neumann's visit to Washington is to secure the restoration of Queen Lillinokalant to the theore under an American profectorate. He does no advise her restoration under any other circumstances, if the congress of the United States shall not deem a protectorate feasible, he would them favor annexation with a liberal allowance for the queen and Princess Kailanl, but he strongly objects to the continuance of the present provisional government in power.

Morgan's Plea for Annexation.

Washington, February 22.—The senate spent several hours this afternoon in executive session on the Hawaiian treaty. Senator Morgan, one of the members of the Behring sea arbitrating board for the United States, leaves for New York tomorrow to begin his journey to Europe. He was destrous of addressing the senate in executive session before his departure and it was for that purpose that the senate laid aside other business this afternoon. No one except Mr. Morgan spoke, and his speech was a strong plea for the annexation of the Hawaii islands, a plea that he has frequently made on the floor of the senate when the doors were not closed. The speech is spoken of as a masterly effort and one of the greatest this distinguished senator and member of the foreign affoirs committee has bet made on the subject of the foreign policy of the United States.

Savannah, Ga., February 22.—(Special.)—
Receiver H. M. Comer, of the Central, returned from Macon this morning. He stated that the rumor that he had been in conference about the engineers was irue.

"There have been conferences, but that is all I have to say," said he.

"Is the matter settled?"

"I have hothing to say beyond that I do not look for any trouble at all with the sugmers of any other employes of the Central system."

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Washington, February 22.—The celebra-tion of Washington's birthday in the capital was greatly curtailed by the severity of the weather. The Veteran Firemen and the Oldest Inhabituts' Association and oth-er organizations turned out, notwithstand-ing, headed by the band of the Third United States artillery, and marched down Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol and back.

In Washington's own town, the neighboring city of Alexandria, the celebration was entirely confined to the public schools. It is now 108 years since Washington announced his intention to pay the tuition of a number of pupils in the free schools in Alexandria, an offer which he continued during his life by an annual payment and for which he made provisions in his will. It was in memory of this foundation that the school exercises took place today.

Washington, February 22.—The senate has removed the injunction of secrecy from the confirmation of Judge Jackson to be an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and has also confirmed the following nominations: G. tion and will leave for Paris immediately after the inauguration of the president-elect.

The first annual convention of the American bimetalic league was called to order this morning by its president. General A. J. Warner. About fifty delegates from western states were present, among them General Weaver, candidate for president of the people's party, accompanied by Jirs. Mary Lease. Mr. Warner stated the aim of the league to be the securing of legislation for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Three sessions were held, two today and one tonight. Among the speakers were Mr. Warner, General Weaver, Mrs. Lease, Senator Stewart, Colonel A. C. Shinn, of Kansas; Mr. Bland, of Missouri; Representative-elect Sibley, of Pennsylvania, a free coinage democrat: Mr. Hatch, of Missouri; and J. W. Huston, chief justice of Idaho. Marion Butler, of South Carolina, in a prepared paper spoke generally of the losses sustained by the cotton interest of the south since 1873 by the demonetization of silver. The free coinage question was a burning one in the south which had been first to feel the effects of its demonetization. He expressed the bellef that the time had come, when the people of the west and south should unite and stand upon one common platform and strike a blow for industrial freedom. and stand upon one common platform strike a blow for industrial freedom.

WORK AHEAD FOR CONGRESS.

Washington, February 22.—The all-night session of the house had a damaging effect upon the various committees which were to meet tails niorning, not one of them being able to muster a quorum. Meetings of the committees investigating the Whisky trust and Panama Canal Company were called for today, but not a member of either committee was on liand at the time fixed.

Counting the 4th of March as a full day, there rehains only nine more days before the expiration of this congress, and the amount of work before the two houses to be accomplished within that short time is not at all cheering to those legislators who see the hours slipping by and ap arently so little being done. Up to the passed both houses, and that is not yet a law for it has not received the signature of the president.

The house appears to be in better shape a law for it has not received the signature of the president.

The house appears to be in better shape than the senate, despite the reputation of the latter body for expeditious work, but a halt will probably be reached in the house when the sundry civil bill arrives there, particularly if the Sherman bond issue amendment, which was engrafted on that bill, precipitates a silver debate, and the members of the house see fit, as they probably will, to renew the world's fair discussion. So far the beds has passed all the appropriation bills but the Indian bill, which is now under discussion, the possofice bill having been completed this morning. The appropriation bills have, however, in some instances, been so changed in the senate that there car hardly be any doubt that when they return to the house they will be subjected to close scrutiny and more or less debate. A perfunctory disagreement and the appointment of conferees will not, it is said be the rule in the case of some of these and be the rele is the case of some of these like.

In the senate today the conference report on the army bill was agreed upon and the only bill that now remains in conference is that carrying appropriations for the District of Columbia.

The senate finished the sundry civil bill this afternoon and there is before it the military academy bill, the consular and diplomatic bill and the legislative bill, all of which have been reported to the senate. The changes in the first two named are but triffling and they will be passed in a few minutes. The legislative bill may be the cause of some debute. The committee of the senate is still engaged with the naval, pension, agricultural and deficiency bills, enough to keep it busy every hour of the time that yet remains to its credit this session. The debate that the sundry civil bill is bound to inaugurate in the house and the numerous conference reports that remain to be acted upon create a gloomy outlook for the members of the appropriation committees of the two houses, to say nothing of the important matters of legislation which the committees are urging for consideration. The indications are that some of these important appropriation bills will not be signed antil congress is in the throes attending its dissolution.

To Contest with Marin for the Kansas Senatorship.

Topeka, Kas., February 22.—The senatorial question is about settled and P. B. Waggoner, of Atchison, general attorney for the Missouri Pacific railread in Kansas, will be declared the nominee of the republicans for senator. Yesterday the republicans, in caucus, decided to allow two democratic members of the house who refused to vote for Martin and who have affiliated with the republicans to name the candidate. These democrats, Meagher and Chambers, named Waggone. There will be no revolt among the republicans and Waggoner will be given eighty-two votes, which, the republicans claim, is a quorum, as the seats of two populist representatives were declared vacant, leaving the total vote of the senate and legislature 163.

It was a north-bound southern express from Washington for New York that crashed into a Morton accommodation from the Central division of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad. A local train was crossing a switch to pull into South street station. All the cars but the last one had crossed when the express came rushing down the track and struck a local passenger car that was upon the switch, full in the middle. The express was made up entirely of heavy Pullmans, and the light passenger car was hurled fifty feet from the track and broken and smashed by the terrible force of the blow. The express train escaped injury and the engineer immediately stopped his train. The twenty-first district police station is but a few squares from the place where the accident occurred, and a squad of officers were soon on the scene and the work of extricating the in-

The injured were all residents of suburban places.

The president was on a special train following the express. His train was delayed about half an hour, and then proceeded to New York.

The accident happened at 10:35 o'clock. The tracks of the Central divison and the main line cross at this point, the former realize running into Thirty second and Chestnut street station, and the latter running into the Broad street station. The accommodation had the right of way, the express being blocked, but owing to the slippery condition of the tracks the engineer of the being blocked, but owing to the slipper, condition of the tracks the engineer of the express was unable to control his train and the locomotive crashed into the accommodation. No one on the express was injured, and the engine was damaged so slightly that it proceeded to New York with the train balf an hour afterward, when the tracks had been cleared.

Cars Completely Broken Uv. Reading, Pa., February 22.—A wreck occurred on the Pennsylvania, Schuylkill Valley road, between Phoenixville and Spring City last night. A shifting engine, wince cert with an empty train of forty going east with an empty train of forty coal cars collided with an extra freight, running west, about one and a half miles west of Spring City. The shifting engine was totally demolished and both engines lay on their sides with fourteen coal cars completely broken up. Watson Weller. John Dennis and Walter Brunner, employed by the company at Spring City, were riding on the shifting engine on their way home to Norristown. Weller and Dennis were killed. Fireman McCord and Flagman Davis, of the shifting engine crew were seriously injured. John Forrester, engineer of the shifter was also badly hurt. McCord died while being removed to his home. The accident was the result of a misunderstanding of orders.

Reduction of Cotton Acreage Advised—Anti-Option Bill Discussed.

Memphis, Tenn., February 22.—Seventy-five delegates were present when the cotton growers' convention met in Memphis this morning. John S. Richardson, a prominent Louistana planter, was called upon to preside. Atwood Violett, of New Orleans, was in attendance, together with Agricultural Commissioners Goodwin and Lane, of Tennessee and Alabama, respectively. There were lengthy discussions over various resolutions, which were all referred to a committee and reported late in the session. A resolution asking the further reduction of cotton acreage and diversification of crops was unanimously adopted. Statistics were quoted showing the benefit to the south of acreage reduction last season. A resolution favoring the anti-option bill came up, but was pigeonholed and then dropped after assurances that the bill had been killed in congress. The convention adjourned sine die.

SHE FLOATS THE FLAG.

New York by President Harrison.

New York, February 22.—The ceremony of raising the American flag on the New York, formerly the City of New York, which was arranged for noon today, was marred by inclement weather, but according to the determination of the officers of the company there was to be no postponement of exercises till another day. The beginning of the ceremonies was made late by the delay of the presidential party, owing to the storm. President Harrison came aboard the New York shortly after 2 o'clock. The naval re-

Behind the space which had been roped off for the presidential party the guests of the ship were crowded. They gave the party a hearty cheer. President Harrison was escorted to the stern of the ship by Captain John C. Jamison, commander. He was followed by four members of his cabinet who were present and Clement A. Griscom president of the American line, and directors of the International Navigation Company.

Congressman Cockran, to whom had been given the honor of formally inviting President Harrison to raise the flag, opened the ceremonies in a brief speech eulogizing the president as a high type of citizenship of this country and a heroic defender of its integrity. In his reply the president said:

"We lift the flag today over one ship, a magnificent specimen of naval architecture, one of the best affoat on any sea. That event is interesting itself, but its interest to me is in the fact that the ship is the type and precursor of many others that are to float this flag. (Applause.)

"I deem it an entirely appropriate function that the president of the United States should lift the American flag."

Immediately the silken stars and stripes were run up and then a string of streamers were unfuried, extending over the mashends to the bow and stern of the big liner.

A president's flag topped the mainmast, the company's new house flag floated at the fore and main, and a flag was displayed at the mizzenmast.

Simultaneously with the appearance of "old glory" over the taffrail, the guns of the Chicago fired a national salute of twenty-ong guns. The navy yard in Blookiyn also responded with twenty-one guns %nd then followed a pandemonium of whisting and bellowing from the craft in the barbor. The trip down the bay had to be canceled on account of the storm.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies President Harrison retired to the main saloon, where he held a reception. He met and shook hands with several hundred guests.

At 3:30 o'clock the president and party went on board the Starin steamer, which departed immediately

New York, February 22.—The steamer Guyandotte, which arrived this morning. from Newport News, brought Captain Conlin and seven men of the American brig Georgiana of Geary, wrecked off Cape May on February 15th. The brig sailed from Charleston February 7th, for New York, lumber laden, and individual to both the light when she was obliged to but into Harriford inlet on account of a northwest hurricane. She let go both of her anchors but the anchors dragged and necessitated the catting away of both masis, after which the anchors held her fast. The vessel leaked badly and was in danger of foundering and the crew concluded to take a small boat and make for the fire fathom baak lightship. They reached the lightship safely and were taken from there yesterday by the Guyandorte and brought to this port. The crew saved nothing except the clothes they wore. This is probably the same vessel reported by the steamer City of Birmingham, which arrived on the 20th.

ANOTHER BIG DAY AT ATHENS

In Which the Entire University Was Interested-Other News from the Classic City.

Athens, Ga., February 22.-(Special.)-Today was the Phi Kappa's day at the university and a most brilliant and pleasant one it was.

This is the seventy-third birthday of that grand and historic old society, and its anniversary was appropriately and fittingly celebrated, and during its existence a mo elightful and successful one has pever occurred under its auspices. The principal enture of the day's exercises was the deorator of the day was Mr. Samuel C. Dean, a brilliant and eloquent young At-lantian, and he did honor to himself, the city he is from and the society he repre

. Dean's subject was "The South, Heroism in the Past and Her Pro-Since the War." He portrayed with lerful vividness the valor, courage and ism of the southern soldiery during he civil war, and recounted with beautifu figure of speech the heroic and courageous devotion of the southern women during that memorable conflict, and the noble part they played therein. In speaking of the south's progress since the war, Mr. Dean took Atlanta as an object illustration and told graphically of her destruction by Sherman's merciless torches, and how Phenix-like she had arseen out of debris and ashes, gaining wealth, strength and greatness like she had arisen out of debris and ashes, gaining wealth, strength and greatness each year, and declared that today from many standpoints, all things considered, she was the foremost city of the nation. He paid his respects in not very complimentary terms to the state legislature for refusing to accept the confederate home, and said that if the great and generous Grady, its originator and founder, were alive he would weep tears of pity over the sad spectacle, and better far it is, he said, that that great, good man, whose love and loyally was so deep and ablding for the gray-haired veterans, slept unconscious under the sod of the proud old state who had given him to the world. Today being the anniversay of Washington's birth as well as that of the Phi Kappa Society, the speaker included in his address a beautiful and loving tribute to that grandest of all noble soldiers and rulers.

speaker included in his address a Deauurul and loving tribute to that grandest of all noble soldiers and rulers.

Mr. Dean was born and reared in Atlanta and graduated from the Boys' High school of that city. He attended Mercer university for some time and came from that college to the university and entered the law class. He delivered the graduating address for his class in the Boys' High school at DeGive's opera house, which attracted wide spread attention for its eloquence, force and strength, and from that day he has been regarded as one of the most eloquent and brilliant young orators of Georgia. His speech today was a gem of thought, the essence of southern loyalty, liberality and generosity and a model of beauty. Every sentence was eloquently uttered and the rhetoric perfect.

Frequently during the discourse the popular orator was interrupted with long and loud applause and at its conclusion there was a perfect rain of bouquets and an avalanche of congratulations. Sam C. Dean, of Atlanta, and of the law class of '93, will be Geogria's Grady of the future. The celebration exercises throughout were very interesting. Ms. R. J. Genta, senior, and a marshals and Messrs, J. V. Kelly and Lee Langly of the law class, carried the colors of the Phi Kappa and Demosthenian societies respectively. After the exercises were over in the chapel the Phi Kappas held an informal reception in their hall and able and interesting speeches were made by Dr. J. B. Hunnicutt, John Mell, F. W. Reed and others. A number of Mr. Dean's friends from Atlanta were present.

Temporary Waterworks.

The city has under consideration several plans for the construction of a temporary system of water works to supply the city from the 1st of March, the time appointed from the 1st of March, the time appointed by the old water works company to cut off their connections, till the new plant can be completed in July. If something is not done when Mr. Howell shuts down his water works, the hotels, stables, factories and residences will be left entirely without water till the new works are completed. The city, however, proposes to meet the emergency, and has under consideration plans for a temporary plant. Professor Charle, Strahan, the city water commissioner, and Mr. J. W. Barnett, the city engineer, are among the ablest civil engineers in the south, and their skill and genius are looked to with confidence to solve the water problem for the future.

A DAUGHTER OF THE REVOLUTION.

Death of Mrs. Mary Jordan Newton is Athens.

Athens, Ga., February 22.-(Special.)-Mrs. Mary Jordan Newton, ninety years old, died in this city this afternoon. Mrs. Newton was one out of nine women drawing pensions as a daughter of the revolutionary war of 1776. Her father was with Washington at Yorktown and was engaged in the defense of Savannah in 1778. Mrs. Newton's children in this city are the wife ex-Congressman H. H. Carlton, Mrs. amar Cobb and Dr. E. D. Newton. She has relatives all over the state. Dr. Kendall, of Atlanta, will conduct the funeral at the First Methodist church in this city hat 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The secased was born in Northampton county, South Carolina, and shortly afterwards her construct moved to Georgia. In many respects character shoved to Georgia. In many respects she was a most remarkable woman, possessing great intelligence and strength of character. She was all her life a charitable and consistent Christian.

NEWS FROM THE CENTRAL CITY.

Thomas's Charges About the Treatment of His Father-in-Law Being Investigated.

Macon, Ga., February 22.—(Special.)—
The Constitution today alluded to the fact that the county commissioners would hold a meeting Friday to investigate the charges. made by Mr. N. B. Thomas to the effect that his father-in-law, Mr. Matthews, while an inmate of the Roff Home, the county poor house, and in a dying condition was struck severely by one of the inmates or nurses of the institution. Today Mr. Gilbert M. Davis, the popular and efficient chairman of the board of county commis-sioners, went out to the home for the pur-pose of learning all he could about the matter and to summon all the needed witnesses to the hearing on Friday. The party who it is alleged struck Mr. Matthews is a white man named William Stewart. Stewart tt is alleged struck Mr. Matthews is a white man named William Stewart. Stewart is himself an inmate of the home. It is a rule with the institution that all convalescent patients shall wait on all inmates who are too sick to wait on themselves. This rule has been made in behalf of economy, so as to keep down the expenses of the home. Stewart was, therefore, acting in this capacity and not as a regular paid nurse or attendant. Stewart claims that Matthews was very irritable and cross and he only threw a towel into Matthews's face and states positively that he did not strike him. The only person in the room with Matthews and Stewart at the tim was another white inmate named Peter Solomon. Solomon says Stewart struck Matthews with his hand. Solomon's wife, who was on the outside of the room, says she heard the lick. Solomon says the lick was not a very severe one. When Matthews died a short time after being hit perhaps a day or so, there were several bruises on his face and it was reported that these bruises were caused by Stewart's licks, but the evidence is that this is not so. Witnesses testified that Matthews had been seen to fall to the ground and to the floor several times while at the home from sheer weakness and that the bruises were caused by these falls and not by and cruel treatment from Stewart. Stewart is a consumptive and now lies stretched on a bed of sickness from which he may never be able to rise again. He is considered to be in a dying condition and will be unable to attend the hearing before the commissioners Friday.

The Passenger Agents.

It will be remembered that the Southern Passenger Agents' Association intended to meet on February 28th at Jacksonville, but on account of the approaching inaugural of Cleveland at Washington it has been found inexpedient to hold the agents convention on the 28th, as they would all be busy looking after travel over their respective roads to Washington, Therefore, Assistant Commissioner Slaughter, who is in charge of the passenger department of the southern association at Atlanta, has sent out a circular letter suggesting a change of date 16th the convention and asking the views of agents as to the best place and time for the meeting. The letter suggested March 21st, Harrow Gate, Tenn. It has been learned that Harrow Gate is not in favor with some of the agents. Traffic Manager Knapp, of the Georgia Southern and Florida road, suggests Atlanta as the place for the meeting, among other reasons being that Atlanta is headquarters for the passenger department of the association, and all the records are there.

The atmosphere outlined last night by aid of reports received of the simultaneous observations of the height of the barometer showed that a storm was passing off the New bingiana coast, followed by a high barometric or clear and cool weather the over the central and southern states, in turn followed by a trough-like storm area extending over the prairie country of the west from North Dakota to Texas. In the latter portion of the country temperatures were high yeaterday and there were a few light widely castered showers. Fair weather prevailed in all other sections of the country except flurries of snow in New York and the New England states.

Today the eastward movement of the storm area in the west will probably cause unsettled weather in the lake region and the Mississippi valley, and by tonight or tomorrow local showers may be occasioned as far southeast amorthern Georgia. Much warmer weather it be expected in most of the states to the east of the Mississippi river during the next forty-eight hours, as the high barometric area is well to the south, making southerly winds probable. The atmosphere outlined last night by aid

Last night at 7 o'clock no freezing weather prevailed in the western states south of South Dakota, whereas in the states east of the Mississippi freezing temperatures were reported as far south as Kentucky and Virginia.

For Georgia today: Fair, warmer.

At the close of the war, old farmers say, a few bushels were sold for $1 a bushel for planting purposes, but they say they have never, nor did they expect to see cotton seed sell at 35 cents a bushel. Many of the seed buyers here believe that seed will sell at 50 cents per bushel by cotton-planting time.

in the country to supply the demand for planting purposes.

Many farmers say they want to procure a kind of cotton that makes nothing but seed, as raising cotton seed will beat raising the cotton lint. The present price of seed will add to the price of cotton two and a half cents, and if it keeps up, and the buyers say the price will remain like it is or go higher, it will make quite a change for the better for the cotton planter.

It has taken nearly as many cars to ship the cotton seed from Carrollton this season as it has to ship the cotton.

This was a good joke, as the ballift great the only widower at the courthouse at is very constant and unremitting in his mentions to the fair sex.

But that is not a part of the story. The rung man who engaged the services of large Van Epps to perform this interestic eremony was Mr. Thomas F. Monroe.

The roung lady was Miss Louise G. Wig-

How It Happened.

Here is the way it an happened:
Several days ago Mr. Monroe had the

His face was immediately lighted up with a mile of recognition.

"How do you do, Mr. Monroe?"

"I am well." said he, "and I have come to see you in regard to that little matter."

There was a momentary flush in the lover's cheek as he referred to the little matter which was all Greek at that stage of the game to every one in the court room except Judge Van Epps, who was into the secret. The spectators only observed that Mr. Monroe was a large bandsome man, well dressed and with an strof importance reflected on his open features.

After knitting his brow for a few seconds be judge turned to the bailiff and said:
The court will take a recess for fifteen

The court will take a recess for fifteen minutes."

Having delivered that utterance from the bach, he vacated his chair, and followed by a balliff, he entered his private office. Mr. Monroe, in the meantime, had stepped out into the hall, and after a score of seconds, returned with his blushing bride baning, upon the arms of her strong probetor. She was a beautiful woman, and here was a modest expression about her ample face that enhanced the charm of her anny, and that caused the judge to gaze with a momentary look of admiration into her sweet face. It was a handsome couple and the judge felt a spirit of reverence come mer him as he thought of the solemn responsibility of putting their lives together.

At the recent convention of the B'nai Brith in Macon Judge Emory Speer, in response to the toast "Our Country" paid an eloquent tribute to the Hebrews.

The Constitution would like to publish the whole speech, but it has not the space to do so. It takes pleasure, however, in presenting the extract following. The riebrews of Atlanta are among the very lest of our citizens and The Constitution always takes pleasure in reproducing whatever good is said of them.

In the course of his remarks Judge Speer said:

In the course of his remarks Judge Speer said:

In my own memory, a man of Jewish blood, although a deserter from its wondrons racias bond, placed the diadem of the Indies on the brow of Victoria. Another became the premier of the confederacy, and thereafter snatched the leadership from the haughty and conservative bar of fanglase. Another, the princely Montinore, has become the type and symbol for philanthruphy and world-wide benevolence, and yet another, the Baron de Hirsch, is now engaged in the wise and generous consecration of his enormous fortune to the purpose of identifying the Jews with the soil and restoring to them their ancient happiness and renown in agricultural and pastoral pursuits. The powerful press of Europe is almost entirely controlled by Jewish publishers, and is filled with the thoughts of Jewish editors and writers. Jewish brain and foresight absolutely dominate the finances of the old world. The science of the Jewish physician and chemist illuminate the whole domain of medicine, the skill and advancement of the Jewish surgeon has placed him in conspicuous eminence. Music, art, poetry and literature owe mighty debts to rich contributions by the genius, the perseverance and the taste of Jewish artists and literateurs. And, sir, although it may be though that long centuries of oppression would naturally tend to destroy the martial instinct of this people, it has wholly failed. Andre Massena, duke of Rivoli, prince of Resiling, marshal of France, the greatest soldier and general of Napoleon's marshals, was a jew I have read that your distinguished guest of this evening, the Hon. Simon Wolff, has easily collated the names of eighty Jewish officers in our own armies, some hoding the high rank of general and the majority of whom were distinguished by the most reckless and daring zeal. Cherished friends of my boyhood were galiant Jewish soldiers in the Russian service. Of the vast achievements of the Hebrew soldier at the bloo

What Atlanta Needs.

M Atlanta could furnish employment every person that wants to come here, wages sufficient to earn a living, the wages sufficient to carn a would have, in two years, a populaof a half million. There can be no bt about this proposition. Take, for instance, the methods by which they have tried to alarm the put lic in the matter of the gold reserve the treasury, and apply to them the analysis which common sense suggests There is a reserve of $100,000,000 in gold in the treasury. What is it there for To keep our currency at par with gold by redeeming it in gold on demand. This is not the truth, but we are giving the gold clique the benefit of its own state ments. But, if the reserve is in the treasury for purposes of redemption, why should there be any alarm or even the slightest agitation, when a part of it. large or small, is used for purposes of redemption? It is possible to imagine a parcel of lunatics kicking up a dust, be cause something or other is used for the purpose for which it was intended, but if the performance were not going on before our very eyes, it would be impossible to imagine a number of business men, presumably sane, trying to fall into a panic because there is a possibility that a reserve fund will be put to the very use for which it was intended.

It is necessary to have a reserve fund, and yet a calamity to use it as a reserve fund! Was ever such an argument heard of outside of Bedlam?

We invite our readers to join us in contemplating the danger there is in permitting men who manufacture such supremely silly arguments to dictate the financial policy of this great republic. It is a very serious matter.

Mugwumpery in Business.

Mr. Henry Villard has suddenly dropped up to his chin into a very warm piece of business. Only the other day, he was strutting about Washington, buttonholing democrats and begging them, in the interests of peace and good order, to vote for the unconditional repeal of the Sher man law, so that the gold sharks could have another profitable whack at the people. Strutting and buzzing, he was prominence itself. Either he or his friends got out the rumor that he was the special envoy of Mr. Cleveland, and he wen about the envy of the less fortunate. But when Mr. Villard stepped out of Washington he stepped into trouble. He chairman of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific railroad, and while he was strutting about in Washingtoncombination of Paul Pry and Jeremy Diddler-a committee representing the stockholders of the railroad was busily engaged in uncovering the tracks he had nade in divers transactions. The committee was composed of Henry

Clews, Brayton Ives, F. K. Sturgis, Wil liam Salomon and Jay Cooke, Jr., and, in the course of their investigations, they discovered that Mr. Villard has been loaning his own money to his own road at 8 per cent, when millions might have been had at 4 or 5; that he has used his osition, as chairman of the board of directors, to sell to the Northern Pacific road various properties in which he was largely interested at exhorbitant prices and that, in many ways, he had been applying the principles of political mug-

An Obnoxious Pension.

President Harrison's proposition to pay the Hawaiian queen a good round sum, and also a pension of $20,000 a year, has not been favorably received.

We pay the widow of General Grant only $5,000 a year, Mrs. George B. Mc-Clellan receives only $2,000, and the widow of Robert Anderson, of Sumter fame, has to be satisfied with $1,200. If these American ladies can get along with small pensions, the dusky queen of Hawaii ought to be satisfied with a big cash payment in the event of the annexation of her islands, or with a moder ate pension.

It is a dangerous precedent for a republic, which grants no titles of nobility, to pension a queen as a queen. If we are to pay a yearly sum of money to this old lady, why not pay it to her as a plain "Mrs.," and not as a royal personage?

The United States would be severely criticised in Europe for giving this allen woman four times the annuity allowed Mrs. Grant, and the criticism would be just. It is no time for any wild experiments in the pension business.

As to Tariff Reform.

The New York Tribune, which is busily engaged in an effort to set the democratic party by its ears, prints a report of an interview with an alleged democrat, an original supporter of Mr. Cleveland, which may or may not be genuine.

This democrat says he is amazed at the suggestion ascribed to Mr. Cleveland that the only necessity which could arise for an extra session of the next congress would be that of dealing promptly with the silver question. The anonymous democrat goes on to say that he cannot understand this except on the theory that Mr. Cleveland and his confidential advisers are to be guided by the policy laid down in the tariff resolution adopted by the committee on resolutions, but re jected by the national convention.

"If this be true," the anonymous democrat is made to say, "the democratic party has been again betrayed, and the voters who rolled up such a magnificent majority for Cleveland 'and Stevenson have been basely deceived and cheated.'

Now, it is safe to say that no intelligent democrat ever employed such language as this. It is unjust and uncalled for. There will be plenty of room for criticism, when it has been demonstrated that there is a tendency, on the part of leading democrats, to ignore the pledges of the Chicago platform. So far as Mr. Cleveland is concerned, he has never, by word or act, given any one reason to believe that he is not the same ardent and earnest tariff reformer that blazed the way for the party in 1884. There is not the slightest evidence that he has even said but At | that the only necessity which could arise for an extra session would be that of dealing promptly with the silver question. The truth is, large advantage has been taken recently of Mr. Cleveland's natural reticence. His enemies, and not his friends, have charged—for the assertion is in the nature of a charge—that he sent such busybodies as Henry Villard to Washington to lobby for the repeal of the Sherman law, and that he declared in favor of an issue of bonds. Mr. Carlisle was enabled to deny such of these charges as came to his ears, but the air was full of similar rumors. Traced to their source, it was found that they emanated from the agents of the money power, who, by the use of Mr. Cleve and's name, hoped to secure the uncor ditional repeal of the Sherman law, and thus place the people completely in the power of the gold sharks.

The Constitution has seen strong symptoms of a desire, on the part of certain democratic leaders, to postpone tariff reform as long as possible, and it has dealt with these symptoms as they deserved to be, but it has had no reason to suspect that Mr. Cleveland is not as ardent and as anxious a tariff reforme today as he was during his first adminis tration, or as he was when he made his speech last year in the capital of Rhode Island.

We have never even had any reason to believe that Mr. Cleveland is opposed to an extra session for the purpose of setting about the work of tariff reform. He has made no sign to that effect. The latest report that had an air of authority about it was to the effect that he had the matter under consideration, and would decide it after his inauguration; that he was not disposed favorably to a spring session unless he could receive assurance that congress would set the wheels of tariff reform in motion, and adjourn

We know very well, however, what the attitude of the people is. They want the tariff reformed as soon as possible, so that they may be relieved of the unjust burdens of taxation which it imposes on them. They want the democratic party to lose no time in redeeming its pledges made in the most solemn manner. Any other programme, looking to any other result, will dishearten and disgust those who enabled the party to win its signal victory, and they will have an opportunity to make their displeasure felt in the fall elections of next year.

Overproduction and the Remedy. All over the country men are complaining that the evil of overproduction hampers them, and deprives industry of its just reward. Whather the products of the farm or the factory are under discussion, we hear the same complaint. Nor does it stop here- Professional men, merchants, clerks and artisans declare that there is an overproduction of men in their occupations—in other words, that there is too much competition.

Some political economists claim that there has never been any overproduction, but rather underconsumption, or lack of distribution. We cannot agree with them. Under our system, in many cases, overproduction is unavoidable, because each individual acts for himself, and there is no way of adjusting the supply to the demand. It has been suggested that cooperation would remedy this, but how is co-operation to be enforced? Conventions and their resolutions cannot control masses of men, all moved by greed and the spirit of competition The government cannot step in and regulate production without destroying the liberty of the citizen.

We have said that overproduction is unavoidable under our system. It does not follow, however, that the evil must be a growing one, and of long duration in any we see it in operation all the time. The evil cures itself. When farmers find that year after year certain crops do not pay the expense of production, they curtail their acreage, and try other crops. When factories fail to pay, they reduce their output, and no more factories are built for a time. When men see certain occupations overcrowded, they try something

This remedy will not strike some of our reformers as a hopeful and encouraging one, but what substitute can be devised? So long as each individual works for himself, independently of others, without cooperation, he must make a study of the business in which he would earn his living. In the course of time, our farmers will study the markets, and the prospective acreage of various crops. Men in every occupation, and those contemplating engaging in any industry or profession, will familiarize themselves with the statistics concerning them, and the knowledge thus acquired will enable them to promptly check overproduction and avoid many of its evils. This is not a complete remedy. There never will be one. We must expect some overproduction for all time to come. We can no more get rid of it entirely than we can get rid of poverty. The best that we can hope for is to get it under such control that it will not become an overwhelming enemy to industry and enter-

GOVERNOR NORTHEN LAST NIGHT.

He Addresses a Larre Audience at the Fir Baptist Church on His Visit to Cuba.

A large audience gathered in the basemen of the First Baptist church last night for the purpose of beating Governor Northen on his recent visit to Cuba.

The governor had been quoted in one of the affernoon papers as saying that the citizens of the island were an ignorant class of people, and that "the only intelligent man that he had met during Lis trip was a Chinaman by name of Tom."

This whetted the curiosity of a large number of people who were easer to ascertain the ernor had been properly quoted. There was hardly a vacant seat in the house by 8 o'clock. The governor is an excellent talker, as well as a close observer, and he held the attention of the congregation without the least dis-culty. He improved the opportunity of co-recting the impressions which had gos abroad, and to give a truthful description the people, their character, religion and ha-its, and also a clear idea as to the nature the Spanish government as exercised in the the Spanish government as exercised in the island.

His reference to the treatment of prisoners in Moro castle was specially interesting. In leading up to this topic he stated that his party was not allowed by the officers to enter the prison. for the privilege before extended to a prominent German, had been abused and the secret of their fortifications divulged by means of phetographs which were taken. A party of congressmen and senators had also been admitted by special permission for the purpose of inspecting the sanitary condition of the prison as affecting future emigration to this country, and even in that case the privilege had been also diver in that case the privilege had been also diver in the same way by one of the members of the party.

The governor, however had secretained from one of the citizens who had been through the prison the real status of the prison life. Meninthe bottom of the gloomy dungeons, had been the prisoners of the government for years. They had no means of ascertaining day from night, nor of reckoning the flight of time in their awful incarceration. They were chained to the walls of the dungeon, and these walls were green with the moisture and impurity of years. The atmosphere was foul and prolific of disease and death, in addition the horrors of such ignominious treatment at the hands of the government mader which they lived and against which, in man cases they had only slightly offended.

Referring to the character of the citizens of Cuba he said, in reference to the article which appeared in the afternoon paper. "Tegret that I have been so seriously misquoted in regard to the intelligence of the Spanish people. I never said to any one that the Spaniards were lacking in this particular. I did say that I had met a very intelligent Chinaman on the island, but that was an isolated and altogether irrelevant statement. The people are many of them educated to the very highest degree of culture, and in many parts of the city of Havana it might be easily possible to imagine that we are

The deep emotion they felt was visible in their faces and in their voices. For twenty years they hav weathered the storm and now with crushing force the blow had come It was unexpected and, therefore, unprepared for. Look at it as they would there was but one alternative.

At 12 o'clock last night President Hill At 12 o'clock last night President Hill gave out the following announcement:

To the Public and Depositors with the Gate City National Bank.—The serious defalcation of our late assistant cashler, Mr. Louis Redwine, having so depleted our supply of cash, we do not feel warranted in attempting to continue business, but deem it for the best interests of both depositors and shareholders to close our doors and ask the comptroller of the currency to take charge of the bank and its affairs. While we regret more than we express the necessity for this step, and more especially the inconvenience to which our depositors and patrons will be subjected, we are cheered by the conviction that it will take but a very short time for their claims to our many triends for their assurances of confidence and support, we regretfully yield to the misfortune which we could not avert.

L. J. HILL, President.

A. W. HILL, Vice President, EDW. S. M'CANDLESS, Cashier. As he handed the card to the reporter

"It almost breaks my heart to give you Mr. Hill and his associates were at the bank until a late hour during the night. They had done all they could. President Hill says, as stated in the card, that the depositors will be paid in full. They will be seriously inconvenienced, but will get their money after a time.

"The bank's affairs," said Cashier Mc-Candless, "will be wound up just as fast as possible. The agent of the government will proceed after the fashion of a receiver appointed to take charge of a business enterprise and will convert into cash all the bank's assets. Just as soon as a certain amount is collected he will declare a dividend to the depositors and they will be paid a per cent on their deposits. Of course it cannot be told how soon the depositors will receive the first payment, but I feel safe in saying that inside of thirty days a dividend of 25 per cent can be declared to the depositors. You see we have a great deal of paper maturing in thirty, sixty and ninety days which will have to be collected at the proper time, but which cannot be touched until after maturity. We feel sure that the depositors will get their money and the shareholders as well. It is only a matter of time."

Although $65,000 in actual money was taken from the bank's ready cash supply it would require probably four times that much to meet a run on the bank like the one that would have been made had the bank opened its doors this morning. Knowing this the head officers decided that it was best to discontinue business altogether

His Salary and the Shortage. In some way he got away with $65,000 and upwards of the bank's money. Of course it cannot be told positively at what time he took the money, but it is generally believed among those who know most about the bank's affairs and about Redwine, that he has been short to the extent of a few thousand dollars for several months, possibly years. paid a salary of $1,500 per annum. His fastest friends say that his living expenses far exceeded that amount. He occupied a room at the Kimball house, was a member of the clubs of the city, run with the fastest set, attended the swellest germans and moved in the very best circles of society. He was one of the leading members of the Capital City Club, and was one of the trustees. He was one of the constant habitues of the clubrooms and often entertained h friends there in a lavish manner. Frequent ly he gave wine dinners at the clubroom which drew heavily upon his purse. Besides this he spent a great deal of money for dress. He was a fancy dresser, and always wore clothes cut in the latest style and of the finest fabric. Box parties at the theater was a favorite amusement with him—he was not particular about the cost. He was a social favorite, and was ambitions to be regarded as a leader. Prudent people might have wondered how an assistant cashier on a salary of less than $2,000 a year could cut such a figure in the gay world as he, but they said nothing. And it never entered their minds to think that there was anything wrong with his ac-counts. He was looked upon as above suspicion. He had made an honorable record n the bank's service, and by fifteen years of faithful work he had won a right to con-confidence and high trust. His habits were expensive, but no one raised a question as to his integrity.

The bank officials believe that for several months Redwine has been taking money in such amounts as he needed to keep up the pace he was going and covered his defalca-tions by false entries on his books. He did not, in he opinion of the bank officials, and bal long men generally, steal considerable s of money at first. He kept the matter hidden, as it was very easy for him to do as a bank official. He was in a place of high trust, and could falsify the records without any great degree of risk of discovery. Never did it occur to President Hill, or Cashler McCandless to suspect Redwine of theft. It is believed that he practiced his thefts for perhaps the length of his service as assistant cashier. President Hill is confident that Redwine's shortage never exceeded over $15,000 previous to last Saturday. He is of the opinvious to last Saturday. He is of the opin-ion that it could have been covered by that figure at that time. He believes that Red-wine had taken money in quantities suff-cient to meet his extravagancies at various times for a year and more. It is possible that the young man had not the slightest idea of becoming a defaulter when he began taking money from his drawer. The temp-tation was a strong one, and he yielded to tation was a strong one, and he yielded to it blindly, with no definite idea as to what the ultimate outcome of his error would be. After appropriating the bank's money he exerted every effort, and used every means in his exercised every effort, and used every means in his exercised every means in his exe in his power to escape discovery. He was successful, and his peculations went on. The Beginning of the End.

Last week United States Bank Examiner
J. W. Campbell came to Atlanta on his periodical tour of examination. He went through the affairs of the Gate City National bank. At that time Redwine's shortage amounted to fully $15,000, possibly more. In the shrewdest way imaginable the cashier went through the official examination without exciting the slightest suspicion.

vestigate very minutely into the condition of national banks and Examiner Campbell thought he did so in the case of the Gate City National bank. It is the duty of the examiner to count all the cash the banks have on hand as well as to become there coughly conversant with the assets generally. Examiner Campbell counted the cash of Paying Teller Frank Wheat and was then called into the vault by Redwine on some pretext. While in there Redwine excused binself for a moment, and, hurrying out, took the cash from the paying teller's side and placed it on his side. He was back with the examiner in a few moments, and when a few minutes later Campbell counted Redwine's cash he failed to discover any shorters but without knowings it here examines Redwine's cash he failed to discover any shortage, but without knowing it he counted a considerable sum of money twice.

But this little scheme of Redwine's was not the full extent of his plot to deceive the examiner and make a clear showing. He borrowed from other banks in the city enough money to pass the examination. Borrowing from one another is not unusual among the banks and the banks from which the money was borrowed thought nothing of it.

By accident the fact that Redwine had borrowed money from other banks came to the ears of President Hill on Monday. He was at a loss to account for such action on Redwine's part. He knew that it was not necessary and become to inquire to inquire to the such action on the such action on the such action on the such action on the such action of the such action on the such action to the such action of the such action to the such action of the such action to the such action borrowed money from other banks came to the ears of President Hill on Monday. He was at a loss to account for such action on Redwine's part. He knew that it was not necessary and began to inquire into it. Still, although he was perfectly aware that the bank was not forced to borrow money, he suspected nothing of the real truth. Very quietly he began to make an investigation on his own account. The result of this was that he discovered Redwine's defalcation. When the discovery was first made nothing was said to Redwine. He was not approached about the matter at all until Tuesday afternoon, the afternoon he disappeared.

It is more than likely that he had anticipated discovery. It is believed that he expected the final blow to fall at any moment. In all probability he found on the night previous to the discovery that his shortage would be shown to the president in a few days and that on Monday night he went to the bank and took $50,000 in money, which he secreted in his room, or in some safe place. It is absolutely certain that the money did not leave the bank earlier than Monday night.

When the hour of discovery came Redwine was cooler than he had been at any time during his wrongdoing. When asked to step into Mr. Hill's office he did not become excited, but walked very quietly down a back stairway and into an adjoining su-step into Mr. Hill's office he did not become excited, but walked very quietly down a back stairway and into an adjoining saloon. He took a drink coolly enough. Vice President Hill, of the bank, entered the saloon, shadowing the assistant cashier. To throw Redwine off the track Mr. Hill asked him to take a drink. Redwine said he had just had one and Mr. Hill walked out of the saloon to the street above. Then Redwine borrowed the hat, as was told in yesterday's paper.

A few minutes after he was in the saloon Redwine was seen by Mr. Nig Simpson on the second floor of the bank building. It is now believed that he went there after he left the saloon and donned a disguise, which he had prepared in advance in anticipation of discovery, and left the building so thoroughly disguised that his closest friend would not know him.

Telegrams have been sent broadcast by Chief Connolly describing Louis Redwine, and asking that he be arrested. The following description was given of the missing eashier: "Thirty-one to thirty-three years of age, looks younger, fair complexion, brown hair, short and cut pompadour, gray eyes, heavy eyebrows, about five feet seven and a half inches high, slight build, weight about one hundred and thirty-five or one hundred and forty pounds, nose rather long adn sharp, bowlegged, clean shaven, when last seen had on gray suit of clothes and small brown felt hat."

Not a single response has been received when last seen had on gray suit of clothes and small brown felt hat."

Not a single response has been received to any of his telegrams by Chief Connelly. He believes that Redwine is secreted in Atlanta. All the outgoing trains were watched during the day.

The air was full of rumors concerning the shortage during the day. Several times it was reported about the streets that Redwine had been captured. A story was set affoat to the effect that he had been treasurer of $50,000 belonging to the Capital City Club. This sum had been realized by the sale of an issue of bonds by the club, which issue was made necessary, to pay some debts of the club. All there was in the rumor was the fact that the club has made such an issue of bonds, and $30,000 of the money realized from their sale had been spent to liquidate club debts, and that the remainder was on deposit in the Gate City National bank, and credited to the club. Less than $20,000 remains on deposit now. But there was no truth in the story.

A story was told, also to the effect that there is a woman in the case, and the woman was designated.

Redwine's propensities for making fast friends was illustrated yesterday in their eagerness to assist him even in his desperate difficulties. A fund was started to make good his shortage. It reached $20,000 by voluntary subscriptions. On every side was heard expressions of regret and sympathy yountary subscriptions. On every side was heard expressions of regret and sympathy for the young man in his bad plight. One gentleman declared in the excess of his ardor for the young man' welfare, that he would place $50,000 on depost to make good the shortage.

Theories of all kinds were advanced, some plausible and others highly improbable. The was watched by Mr. Welborn Hill down into the barroom. The latter came out on the sidewalk and stood at a point where he commanded a full view of both exits. Out of one of these Redwine assuredly did go, but haw?

Mr. Nig Simpson furnishes a theory which seems to fit in right here, Recen'ty the office of the city attorney has been moved into the Gate City National bank. One of the best detectives of the south and nothing of any moment escapes his observation. It is Mr. "Nig" Simpson, who has been in the service of the city for a long time. Mr. Simpson knows as many men as any one in the city and among the number was Mr. Redwine. Redwine was known well by the detective and between the two there was quite a link of friendship.

Mr. Simpson has been in the Gate City bank building for only a short time and naturally the surroundings being strange he gave more than ordinary observations to all things that came near him. This is no more than any other man would have done. Any one in a strange place is more observant than he is after he becomes acquainted with the surroundings.

The city attorney's office is located on the second floor of the building, and when Mr. Simpson was coming away from the office about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon he saw Mr. Redwine going up the stairway. Mr. Redwine saw the office about the same time and speaking passed on, but changed his course and went into one of the toilets. That was the last ever seen of the missing cashier.

Mr. Simpson says that he thinks that Mr. Bedwine had been contemplating a

Mr. Simpson says that he thinks that Mr. Redwine had been contemplating a flight and that he had secreted in the building a disguise and that he was then on his vay to that disguise, and that he assumed it and passed out of the building in full view of Mr. Hill. Of course, however, he does not assert that such is really the case.

No Reward Offered.

Where Redwine went after he left that

Where Redwine went after he left the bank building is a matter for speculation. Some people believe he immediately left the city, his identity screened from discovery under a clever disguise. Only the fact is known that he was not seen by a single person who knew him after he left the bank building.

Friends of Redwine, who knew him best, were of the opinion that he would kill himself, and at the suggestion of one of them Chief Connolly had the bank building thoroughly searched yesterday morning, expecting to find the dead body of Redwine in ing to find the dead body of Redwine in some obscure corner. There is no doubt of the fact that Redwine got away with about $50,000 in hard cash.

Redwine was not a gambler, or speculator. He had other bad habits, but neither of these were among his vices. Young men who associated with him constantly say that he never indulged in cards nor played with the stock exchange. His greatest vice was a love for display, and a desire to be a leader of society.

The bank has, of course, compiled with the requirements of the national banking act, and has a certain sum on deposit in the United States treasury. The bank's assets are thought to exceed the amount of its deposits, and of its other liabilities. The bank building is contained in the list of assets, and is said to be well worth $300,000. The bank has about $150,000 subject to check.

000. The bank has about $150,000 subject to check.

It may be that the present company will pull through their present trouble, reorganize and re-enter the banking business again, but that is a matter for the future entirely. Not even the officers of the bank have looked that far forward.

No reward has yet been offered for the capture of Defaulter Redwine. The matter was under consideration by President Hill yesterday, but having so many other matters to look after and being doubtful as to whether he was authorized to offer a reward without a meeting of the board of directors, he took no action in the matter, but will do so today. A reward of $5,000 will be offered. The Fidelity Security Company, which company is on Redwine's bond for $10,000, will also offer a reward it is presumed.

Was Redwine's flight precipitated by the discovery of his shortage or was he fixing to go Tuesday night anyhow?

Defaulters often wait until Saturday night or the day preceding a holiday to skip. Yesterday being a holiday, the bank's vault would ordinarily have been set with the time lock to open this morning. Redwine could have arranged to leave Monday afternoon on the vestibule for New Orleans. He would have reached that city yesterday morning and by this morning would be at Laredo. If the bank officials suspected nothing wrong, they would not discover his shortage until toward noon, if then. By the time telegrams could reach Laredo, the fugitive could be across the border in Mexico.

A few years ago a cashier in this state, who was $75,000 short, skipped out one Saturday night. Monday was the 4th of July. When the disappearance was discovered the fugitive was in Canada with $30,000 of the bank's money and he is still there.

It is suggested that Redwine may have dropped the bulk of his pile in stock spec-

It is suggested that Hedwine may have dropped the bulk of his pile in stock speculation last week.

He is said to have taken at least $50,000 between Saturday morning and Monday night. Had he been carrying a small line of certain stocks, all that money might have gone through the market in two or three days.

Last Thursday Philadelphia and Reading stock was 48. To a man this far away it might have looked to be a good speculation. Just a year ago the stock jumped up rapidly and fortunes were made from a few thousand dollars. Last week it was known that the Reading management was trying to scoop in another road which was calculated to give the stock another boost. So it looked to the casual outsider a good purchase.

A broker says that if Redwine had $2,500

A broker says that if Redwine had $2,500 A broker says that if Redwine had $2,500 up on margins last Thursday he might have been counting on realizing handsomely within a week. On Friday the stock tumbled four or five points. If the speculator was margined for only a dollar a share he would have had to put up $10,000 that day to protect himself. On Saturday the market went down to 36, a drop in two days of twelve points. To cover on that would require $30,000. Then on Monday the market broke to 26 and recovered to about 28. There was a loss since Friday of $20 a share.

A speculator with plenty of other people's money at his hand might try to save what was gone by covering and to cover for the twenty points would take $50,000.

This decline came so quickly that an amateur speculator might easily have got rattled and knowing that he was in for a defalcation unless he could make back, risked the whole $50,000. Many a man has lost his head and done precisely this very thing, and instead of letting two or three thousand after his first investment.

three thousand dollars go as a loss, thrown fifty thousand after his first investment.

One broker who was asked if he knew of Redwine speculating, replied that he had never heard of it.

"While I would not let a committee of bankers examine my books I will show them to any committee of citizens, and if Redwine's name is found on them, I will make good his shortage if it is in my power," was the reply.

The tremendous decline in Reading coming along with the discovery of the defalcation, suggested to a few that the money went in speculation but most discredited that theory.

He was at first supposed to be from Atlanta, many believing him to be the defaulting cashier Redwine, but late this evening he was identified as Frank Wallace, who not long ago ran a fruit stand in Tallapoosa. He was penniless and out of work and despondency is supposed to have caused him to commit the deed. He was a young man about thirty-five years of age.

This is a well deserved promotion and Colonel Scully's new station is considered one of the best in that branch of the service. He will leave Atlanta in the course of the next ten days and his friends here, of whom he has formed many during his residence in Atlanta, will regret to hear of his departure.

Captain John L. Clem, who succeeded Captain J. W. Jacobs in charge of the construction of the Fort McPherson, has been promoted to Colonel Scully's place and for the next four years will act as quartermaster of this division of the United States army in charge of the national cemeteries.

Captain Clem has lived in Atlanta about six months, taking Captain Jacob's place after the latter was transferred to the west. Captain Clem has lived in Atlanta about in Atlanta and during his comparatively brief residence here has made many friends. He is an excellent gentleman and all who know him will be delighted to know of his promotion, which insures his residence in Atlanta for at least four years more.

Captain Clem will occupy the office formerly used by Colonel Scully in the Gate City bank building.

aker v. Goldsmith. Evidence. Before R. J. McCamy, judge pro hac vice. Bartow su-perior court. perior court.

1. On the trial of a motion to establish a sepy of a declaration in attachment alleged to be lost, it was not error to refuse to allow the respondent in the motion and his attorney to testiff that the clerk of the court had said to each of them, while searching in his office for the lost paper that no such declaration had ever been lived, this testimony being objected to on the ground that it was hearsay. It was ascrative of a past transaction or omission, and not pertinent to illustrate the work in progress when the statement was made.

Shope v. Fite & Boston. Certiorari. Appeal. Practice. Before Judge Milner. Catoosa superior court.

1. Section 4052 of the code allows the party dissatisfied with the decision or judgment in a rause tried in a justice's court to apply for and oltain a writ of certiorari for the correction of errors made upon the trial. But that section does not contemplate that the party who gains his case completely and entirely in the justice's court may, by writ of certiorari, have the superior court review alleged errors committed by the justice, which resulted in no injury to the prevailing party on the trial before the justice's court, and the plaintiff obtained judgment for the full amount sued for, it is immaterial to him that the justice may have erred in allowing a plea of non est factum to be filed after the appearance term of the case, and, although the defendant may have ertered an appeal to a jury in the justice's court, this does not authorize the plaintiff, pending the appeal to a jury in the justice's court, this does not authorize the plaintiff, pending the appeal to a jury in the justice in allowing the plea to be filed. On the trial of the appeal, the question as to the filing of the plea would still be open, and on the state of facts appearing in the record before this court, the plea should then be stricker. McCall v. Tufts, 85 Ga. 619.

Where an employe of a railroad company brought his action against it, alleging that he was injured by a co-employe's negligence in dropping a bar of iron which they were lifting, and the railroad company defended on the ground that the from was not negligentify iropped by the co-employe, but that its fall was caused by the accidental slipping of his Boot. and there being some evidence to sustain this theory, it was error in the court to refuse to give in charge a written request of the defendant that "if the evidence shows that the futury was caused by the accidental slip of the foot or stumble of the witness Seay (the co-employe), then the plaintiff cannot recover."

(a) While as a general proposition, a charge that if the injury was the result of an unavoidable accident the plaintiff could not recover. may have covered the request, the case was a proper one for applying the principle to the specific defense relied upon. Even if the act of December 22, 1884, would otherwise be applicable (Acts of 1884-5, p. 91), it is not so in this case, for the reason that the cotton was never actually turned over and delivered by the tenant in payment of the 2. Cornwall v. The State. Criminal law. Burglary. Evidence. Confession. Charge of court. Verdict. Juror. Before Judge Jenkins. Jones superior court.

1. There was no error in admitting in evidence the bag which contained the silver when stolen from the broken building, and which bag was afterwards found in the prisoner's possession; and though the tools admitted in evidence were new ones and had not been used, this did not exclude them, there being evidence of the prisoner's admission that he had thrown away or concealed the tools used in the burglarious enterprise, and also evidence tending to show that the new ones were adapted to a like use as well as many other uses.

in the burglarious enterprise, and also evidence tending to show that the new ones were adapted to a like use as well as many other uses.

2. The bag in which silver money was when taken from a safe in the burglarized building, though of little or no value fin itself, is such an article of property as the rule with reference to accounting for the possession of stolen goods applies to. This bag having been found in the prisoner's possession within four days ofter the burglary was committed.

3. A detective having arrested the accused and being about to turn him over to other custodians, told him be had done, which was false, and what he had done, which was false, and what he had done, which was false, and what he had done, which was false, and these people you have my handeuffs on, and if you get away I want you to, send my handcuffs back; if you get away you may need this money," giving him two dollars-admissions in the nature of a confession which followed immediately without other inducement than this were admissible in evidence; nor would the fact that the confession was indirect rather than direct render it landmissible.

4. The jury may consider a confession if it of, was freely and voluntarily made, though the fur chective to whom it was made used artifice, let or deception in order to impose on the bed fursed and induce him to confide in his good who if and friendly feeling.

Would being impeached by evidence introduced so of ghat purpose, it was not error to charge lick or deception in order to impose on the furse freely and absolutely swent for the defendant is permitted by law to make a statement in his own behalf not under onth, and it is your right and dury to welch and consider that statement in his own behalf not under onth, and it is your right and dury to welch and consider that statement. sumption touching the defendant's statement, no presumption that it is true nor any presumption that it is true nor any presumption that it is unitrue. In other words it goes to you without presumption either for it or against it."

6. It was not error to charge the jury thus: "There are two kinds of evidence known to the law; one known as direct evidence, that is that which immediately points to the question in issue. There is also known to the law indirect or circumstantial evidence; that is that which only tends to establish the issue by proof of various facts sustaining by their consistency the hypothesis claimed. If you find there is no sufficient positive evidence to authorize a conviction in this case, then ascertain whether or not there is sufficient circumstantial evidence acceptable to you is of a circumstantial character only, then determine whether that evidence removes all reasonable doubts of the defendant's guilt. When testimony relied on to convict is entirely circumstantial it has labely be sufficient to remove all reasonable doubt. If there is no reasonable hypothesis save that of the defendant's guilt. It must be sufficient to remove all reasonable doubt. If there is no reasonable hypothesis upon which it could be placed that would remove any reasonable doubt, if there is a reasonable doubt. But whether the testimony be positive or circumstantial; if it removes from the mind of the jury all such reasonable doubt, it would be sufficient to authorize a conviction. If you find from the evidence in the case, whether positive or circumstantial; that it is sufficient to remove all reasonable doubt, it would be sufficient to authorize a conviction. If you find from the evidence in the case, whether positive or circumstantial; that it is sufficient to remove all reasonable doubt, it would be sufficient to authorize a conviction."

7. Though it was not accurate to charge the jury thus: "And if you find there was a burglary committed and that goods were stolen from the house burglarized and the defenda accuracy is no cause for a new trial in the present case, the evidence as a whole showing bevond any reasonable doubt that the verdict which they have united with their fellow facts which go or tend to impeach the verdict which they have united with their fellow jurors in rendering.

9. Where the expression imputed by one witness to a juror as made by him before the trial was. "If they take me on the jury in that burglary I will convict them fellows sure," and by another, "If I am caught on that jury I will convict him sure," and the juror in explanation testifies that all he said was addressed to one of the prisoner's counsel and was. "That if the evidence warranted it he would hang the defendant;" also, that he said this without any prejudice whatever against the prisoner and was rather in hopes that he would be rejected as a juror, there was no error in treating the explanation as sufficient and in holding that the cjuror had not rendered himself incompetent. He was most probably endeavoring to evade service as a juror. He testified also that he was perfectly impartial and only wished the prisoner, who was an entire stranger to him might have a fair trial.

10. That one of the jurors repeated aloud to the attending bailiff a message which he requested the bailiff to deliver to his, the juror's son, touching the conduct of some work which was to be done at the juror's home, and that the son was near enough to hear the message as his father dictated it, would not vitiate the verdict.

11. That two of the jury if the room in charge of a bailiff to attend a call of nature, and were absent fifteen or twenty minutes, and that the ten who remained in the room with the door and windows closed in the meantime were unguarded by an officer and not locked in, will not vitiate the verdict where it appears that neither those who went out nor those who remained in had any intercourse with any one during the absence of the bailiff with the two wo thus refred.

He stated that the engineers do not look for a clash. The differences on the Louisville and Nashville and the "Sam" roads are recent instances of quick adjustments of grievances. The labor organizations on the railways will be more strongly opposed to strikes this year than ever before. "There is a great deal of talk about strikes this summer, but, so far as the Brotherhood of Engineers is concerned, I am sure that it is all a mistake," he added.

Superintendent Winder, of the Georgia Carolina and Northern, returned yesterday from Baltimore, where he went to attend a conference of the general officers summone by President Robinson a few days before hi death.

The conference was subsequently held. In the matter of erecting a warehouse and storer in Atlanta it was decided to erect an immense freight depot, covering all the ground which the company bought. As the restoration of free delivery was expected, it was decided to defer adding the storehouse feature for the present.

New York, February 22.—The World says:

"It is thought the reply from Drexel, Morgan & Co., relative to the Richmond Terminal reorganization plan, will be made tomorrow and that it will be favorable to the taking up of the task by this house. The Vanderbilts are already large holders of securities of this system and it is considered likely that the new plan will bring them into more prominent control, with a possible falling into their possession of the Reading system, now that it is the property of any one who desires to pick it up, with New England theirs for the asking and for the holdings they always have, some railroad map makers are figuring out the tremendous mileage which the near future may see under the Vanderbilt domination."

THE SCRAP HEAP.

Mr. James Farnesworth came down yesterday from Knoxville to look after some advertising of the East Tennessee. In connection with the advertising department which he manages is the handsome publication. "The Bell." This is the handsomest publication issued by a southern railroad. It is widely circulated and constantly keeps the world's fair route to the front.

Traffic Manager Lutz, of the Atlanta and West Point, and Superintendent Ryder, of the Georgia Facific, were in Atlanta yesterday.

West Point, and Superintendent Ryder, of the Georgia Pacific, were in Atlanta yesterday.

The Central has two new trains ready to put on the Nancy Hanks run. They are painted blue and are said to be very handsome. They will be put on in a day or two, perhaps today.

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas will build a branch from Jefferson across to Shreveport, thus giving the latter city another outlet. This will be one more connection for the lines on this side of the Mississippi which reach Texas by way of Shreveport. A through sleeper is now running between Atlanta and Shreveport. With a new line out of that city, better concession can be secured by travelers from this section to Texas, and there are hundreds of them every year.

Louis Hill has gone from the East Tennessee's local ticket office, where he was assistant, to the Central, where he has the same position. He is succeeded in Mr. Kirby's office by Devries Davis.

Captain W. H. Green, general manager of the Richmond and Danville, left at noon yesterday on a special for an inspection trip over the Georgia Pacific. He will go all the way to the Mississippi river.

ers was very nearly precipitated moonshiners was very nearly precipitated last Tuesday night.

Deputy Collectors Ware, Spence, and Hetherington, and Deputy Marshals Campbell and Carter, made a successful raid on a large distillery in Madison county. It was 11 o'clock at night on Tuesday when the officer surrounder the still but by the the officers surrounded the still, but by the light of the still fire the figures of the moonshiners could be plainly seen moving to and fro.

When the revenue officers closed in upon the moonshiners the surprise was a complete one, and out of the seven men at work at the still only two escaped, but this was on account of the darkness. No sooner had the officers finished the destruction of the still and started on their way to the nearest station with the prisoners than shots were heard on all sides. The bullets did not come near the party of officers and prisoners, as the moonshiners were afraid that in the darkness they might kill some of their friends by mistake. The officers did not fire in return.

The five moonshiners captured, Thomas Goodrum, W. H. Goodrum, James Goodrum, J. J. Meadows, and J. W. Carey, were brought before United States Commissioner Gaston yesterday morning. While hearing the evidence Judge Gaston took occasion to rmark upon the peculiar fitness of the names of three of the moonshiners, Goodrum, and to venture that it was not "bad whisky." The three Goodrums and J. J. Meadows, were bound over to Fulton county jail in the sum of $300 each. Carey being released for the want of evidence, James Goodrum and J. W. Carey succeeded in giving bond and were released. The still destroyed was of eighty-five gallons capacity and twenty-five hundred gallons of beer, fifteen bushels of meal and some low wines and whisky were also made away with.

DEATH OF AN ESTEEMED LADY.

The Wife of Bev. T. C. Boykin Passes Away Yesterday Morning.

Mrs. T. C. Boykin, the wife of Rev. T. C. Boykin died at her home in Decatur yesterday morning.

The intelligence of her death will carry genuine sorrow to many hearts. In her manner amiable, and in all her actions consistently Christian, she was a power for good, and was universally loved by every one who knew her. Her death will be a great loss to the community and to the church of which she was a member.

She was ill for only a short length of time, and few of her friends in Atlanta were apprised of her condition. She endured her sufferings, however, with a patient recognition, and the end came peacefully and happily. She was surrounded by the immediate members of the household, who had been constant and unremitting in their attention.

TALLULAH NO. 3.

The Boys Got Themselves Together Again Last Night.

GREAT FEAST AT FOLSOM'S.

Everything Good to Eat and Many Witty Speeches - A Pleasant Reunion of the Old Firemen.

If the fire bells had sounded last night between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock Mr. Room fame, would have been "set back" many dishes and fine crockery. It was the occasion of the banquet of the "Old Tallulah" No. 3," and so much like old times it did seem that the boys quite forgot themselves and their gray hairs, and would have tumbled out at the sound of the bells any minute and dashed on the impulse to the place where they used to keep their reels and engines.

The company was established by the younger men of Atlanta on the 22d of Feb ruary, 1859. It was named Tallulah after the famous Tallulah Falls, because the stream of water that it was supposed to throw upon a fire was as disastrous to the fire fiend as would be the everlasting torrents that pour over the stone basin of pretty Tallulah river with all their thunder. The Banquet Scene. There was a brilliant scene at Folsom's Reading Room restaurant last night when the old Tallulahs sat down to their banquist spread. It was a feast that would have been fit for an artist to picture. The long tables were heavily loaded with daluty viands of every description, every deficacy, every wine and all manner of good things being there for the revelers at their reunion.

The artistic display as well as the excel-lence of the banquet in every partic!ar, was a compliment to the memoers of the company, and was at 'he same time a credit to Folsom's Reading Room restau-rant.

credit to Folsom's Reading Room restaurant.

At one table the following members of the old Tallulahs were seated:
Clark Howell, George H. Hope, H. C. Leonard, M. G. Parker, W. H. Joyner, E. M. Berry, C. M. Goodman, E. D. L. Mobley, W. T. Richards, C. R. Harris, S. R. Johnston, G. W. L. Powell, J. A. C. Breman, J. W. Woodruff, John Connally, J. E. Clower, Dan Lygon, H. M. Robinson, W. C. Sparks, John R. Parks, At the other table were Messrs. Murphy, Johnson, Holliday, Talbert, Christophine, Joyner, Werner, Drummond, Tuller, Crew, Cabaniss, Holbrook, Hunekoff, Troth, Leonard and Shearer.

The boys were all feeling happy at the reunion and they did not mind making boid to let it be known. They told many a good joke on this man or that about the good old days when they were boys romping out to the fires in Atlanta. They were enthusiastic at the meeting of the boys again and they were unmindful of everything except the praise of "Old Tallulah."

Some Speeches.

thing except the praise of "Old Tallulah."

Some Speeches.

Nearly every one of the boys made a speech during the feast. It started with a very bright string of anecdotes from Henry Cabaniss. He was in a good humor and made a clever little speech.

Then came Ben Crew who made a very bright speech, too.

Howell and Leonard came after these two with some good yarns well told.

Vice President Sparks made a good speech, stating how glad he was to see the company on its feet again and declared that it would seem from the life of the banquet scene that every one of them could get out their old reels and do good work yet if they had the old things anywhere near about, for there was life in the old land yet.

Speeches along this line were made by Connally, Harris, Johnson, Joyner, Richards, Christophine, Werner and others. They were all in a good humor with the world and made very witty speeches every one of them. One of the most enjoyable features of the entire programme was the song by "Brother Shearer" as the boys all called him.

Mr. George M. Hope nade a stort talk about the pleasure that it gave nim to be present. He was in more of a serious mood than most of the men present, so it seemed.

Next came Howlett Joiner who made a

Next came Howlett Joiner who made a very funny speech recalling many a scene of the company's frolics over the streets of Atlanta. Mr. G. D. L. Mobley was next called upon by the boys and he responded with the story of how he came to become a member of the Tallulahs.

story of how he came to become a member of the Tallulahs.

Here Mr. Ben Crew made a clever speech recalling the faithful work of Willis R. Biggers, one of the most wide-awake members of the company who had long since crossed the river to ioin the vast mau rity. He called upon the members to rise and raise their glasses, but drink not a dron as a toast to his memory, and this was done, every man rising.

Other speeches were made by Messrs. Olin Claridy, C. M. Goodman, John Woodruff, J. C. A. Branham, Steve Jahnson, Bill Spencer, Ed Clower, Charley Spencer, H. H. Cabaniss and Remsen Crawford.

Charley Fuller, the young at member of the company, was there, and made a good speech. It was decided to have a committee to act as a sort of executive committee to act as a sort of executive committee in keeping the company remainertly organized, after which the final that to Old Tallulah, was "sent south," and the meeting adjourned.

DR. WOOLEY MARRIED.

An Interesting Social Event Which Occured Yesterday in Atlanta. An Interesting Social Event Which Occured Yesterday in Atlanta.

A quiet but interesting social event occurred at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the marriage of Dr. Basil M. Woolley to Miss Dora V., daughter of the late M. E. Abbey. The ceremony was performed by Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, pastor of the First Baptist church, in the presence alone of the immediate relations of each, at the home of the bride's mother, 207 Whitehall street. Dr. Woolley is too well known at home and abroad for his estimable qualities of mind and heart, and as one of the leading specialists of the country to need an introduction to the public, and in the consummation of an event that will terminate the loneliness of unmarried life many friends and admirers will unite in extending him congratulations and good wishes.

The lady selected by Dr. Woolley as his partner along the journey of life, is highly educated, refined and accomplished. Her father was noted for his zeal in the cause of temperance and religion, and was in the prime of life an editor and writer of marked ability. She is a niece of the Rev. Richard Abbey, D.D., of Mississippi, a distinguished divine of the Methodist church and author of many popular works, moral and religious.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom, 575 South Pryor street.

At home to friends after the 1st of March.

Dr. Carpenter III.

Professor Carpenter was taken sick yesterday and could hardly get through his lecture at night. His manager fearing a serious illness concluded to give him a rest for the balance of the week. In consequence that lectures announced for the balance of the week will not take place. Harry Underwood Paralyzed.

ON TO WASHINGTON.

Governor Northen and Staff Have Made Arrangements.

THEY WILL HAVE THE BEST OF HORSES.

It Is Going to Be a Delightful Trip-Other Military News and Gossip Caught Here and There.

Quartermaster General A. J. West has returned from Washington where he went to look after the arrangements for the gov-ernor and his staff to take part in the inauural parade and cereme

Major West says that he has made every arrangement complete for a splendid appearance of the Georgia representation. He has engaged handsome horses for the men who will go with the governor and secured comfortable quarters for the men from the Empire State of the South while they are at the national capital. It was in short a successful trip for Ma-jor West and he has done the thing up to the queen's taste.

It was necessary for the governor and his staff to have taken such a step as this is in order to have prepared themselves for the great rush for horses and hotel accommodations that will be experienced in Washington at the time of the inauguration.

Of course they wanted to be well fixed at the national capital, while there in the name of the Empire State of the South. They will be among dozens of representatives from other states, who will all vie with each other in the matter of making a good appearance in the parade and what would the people at the inauguration think to see Georgia at full gallop down the avenue aback of cheap horses or maybe mules?

Major West was especially interested in the matter of getting good horses for the men to ride in the parade and has succeeded beyond his expectations. He has engaged about twenty or twenty-five fine horses for the governor and his staff to ride in the procession.

He has contracted for a dashing gray for Colonel John Milledge to ride. Colonel Milledge is the chosen one to bear the colors of the state on that occasion, and, being ledge is the chosen one to bear the colors of the state on that occasion, and, being one of the best horsemen among the governor's staff, it was desired that he be given one of the finest horses that could be found in Washington. He has always been one of the most dashing and most gallant cavalrymen in the service of the state and it is a fit tribute that he should have been elected to bear the colors of the state at this honorable occasion.

Governor Northen and his entire staff will leave on the 1st of March for the national capital and will go by way of the Richmond and Danville. They will leave Atlanta on the early train of the Richmond and Danville on the 1st of March and will reach the national capital in the forenoon of the 2d of the month. Thus they will have a day and a half to see the sights of the city before the day of the inauguration. It will be a pleasant trip for the governor and his staff and that they will enjoy it in the extreme goes without saying. It is a duty they owe the state to go, too. Nearly every state in the union will be represented there that day by its governor and his staff.

All the Congressmen Going.

All the Congressmen Going. All of the newly elected congressmen will go from Georgia. Hon. Carter Tate was in the city yesterday and says that he could not miss the trip: Congressman Ben Russell will also join the governor and his staff and will be one of the distinguished Georgians at the inauguration. All of the rest of the boys will go.

At Columbia, S. C., the Georgia Hussars, of Savannah, will join the governor and party and will go along to Washington with them as a military escort. It is probable that several of the companies from Augusta will also go.
